In Thailand, a few children have learned about Jesus and accepted Him as their Savior. Here are letters from children in a Sunday School class in Bangkok, Thailand.

Hi! My name is Nawiya Wiwattananonpong. My friends call me Eye. I am nine years old and in the third grade. I am from Bangkok, Thailand, and I speak Thai.

My mom is a Christian. My dad is not saved yet, but he lets us go to church every Sunday. My mom has taken me to church every week since I was a little girl. Every Sunday I like to listen to the Bible story. On February 28, 2010, I accepted the Lord as my personal Savior. I am glad that I learned about Jesus. I pray that soon Dad will come to know Jesus as Savior.

Hi! My name is Bay. I'm six years old. I grew up in a Christian family. My dad and mom brought me to church every Sunday. When I was little, I didn't want to go to my Sunday School class. I wanted to stay with my mom. But now I like my Sunday School class a lot. I like to learn the Bible story, color, and make a craft. Oh! I like to eat snacks too.

Eye and Bay know about Jesus, but many children in Thailand are Buddhists. They have not yet learned about Jesus. Churches in Thailand have asked for help. They need Sunday School and VBS materials in the Thai language. Two young ladies, Grace and Pet, are translating Sunday School lessons into Thai. Your gift to Operation Translation: Help Me Learn about God in My Own Language will help print the lessons in Thai so churches will have good children's Bible materials in their own language.

Thank you for helping the children of Thailand learn about Jesus.
